

Northside

The Northside is one of the oldest neighborhoods in Houston with the southern part of the neighborhood established in the 1880s when the Hardy Rail Yards were developed by the Southern Pacific Railroad Company. The neighborhood was settled primarily by new immigrants from Central and Southern Europe, Germany, Bohemia, and Italy. Part of the neighborhood has been designated as a Historic District on the National Register of Historic Places.

The Northside expanded beginning in the 1910s; after World War II, demographic changes lead to the Northside becoming a predominately Mexican American neighborhood. In the period after World War II - as Houston began to expand in all directions - the northern areas of our district developed from a rural area to a residential neighborhood. The District is made of many diverse communities with rich histories and stories to share.

The District is interested in sharing the wealth of opportunities, history, and culture of our community. Please contact us for more information and to be placed on our mailing list.

Northside

The Northside is the home of some of the best authentic Mexican food in the city. Family-owned restaurants include the best the City has to offer. We are also home to three breweries and numerous other unique places to grab a bite and unwind.

For a list of award-winning restaurants, please visit our website or contact us for a list.
